

Goldfield Block Burned At Midnight With Loss Estimated at $25,000

Another conflagration, the third in a month, threatened Goldfield with destruction at midnight and it was not until 1 o'clock this morning that the people of the camp breathed freely. Three-fourths of the block bounded by Main, Miner, Hall and Columbia was completely wiped out with a loss that is estimated to be not less than $25,000. The amount of insurance is not known, but those who are in a position to understand the situation declare the amount covered by insurance is trifling.

The fire started at 11:45 o'clock in the livery stable of Kibbey & Johnson, on the southwest corner of Miner and Columbia, opposite the Hippodrome theater. There was no wind at the time and the firemen were not handicapped by the burning embers being carried into other neighborhoods. The flames ran through the rear of the livery stable and jumped the alley into the second-hand furniture store owned by Jensen on Main street. The inflammable nature of the stock hastened the spread and, despite a perfect deluge of water from four streams, the fire kept creeping along to the north towards the massive stone building occupied by the Goldfield Con. company store. Before reaching that point where the property was protected by a firewall two feet thick, the water began telling and the flames were extinguished, leaving two stores intact between the Ross Holley building and the burned district.

At one time when the heat was most intense from Jensen's store it seemed impossible to save the buildings on the west side of Main street, as they had already begun smoldering and the windows had cracked before the fierce heat. At this juncture a crew of volunteers, including John Kunz, the attorney, who had gone to the fire in his pajamas, secured a bill board which they placed in front of them for a shield and then directed two streams on the houses and stores opposite Jensen's. This saved the day. The loss on Main street would not have been so great had it not been for the fact that there was some delay in stretching the first hose from Hall and Main street owing to the motor truck which was paying out the hose going dead and necessitating laying line by hand.

Feutsch's saloon, known as the California beer hall, was slightly damaged by the fire, charring the roof and sides. Otherwise the building escaped. The contents were damaged by the hurried removal which resulted in a quantity of broken glassware.

Joe Gloga's residence at the corner of Columbia and Hall streets and the Kibbey house adjoining escaped. The fire originated in the stable of Kibbey & Johnson from some cause unknown. The only person in the stable was young Kibbey, a crippled boy, who usually slept there. At 11:25 he was awakened by the noise of a horse dashing out of the stable and arose to find what was the matter. He was confronted by a sheet of flame that enveloped the whole interior and without further loss of time he dashed headlong through the office window and gave the alarm. Four horses were consumed with the building, which was the largest and one of the earliest erected in the city when hundreds of freighting teams were employed. Mr. Kibbey has the greatest part of his stock at Luning engaged in hauling.

HIGHEST SILVER IN TWENTY-FOUR YEARS

Silver in New York reached 80 cents this morning in making the official quotation which stands as the world's basis of settlement on all transactions involving the precious metals. This is the highest since 1893 and there is corresponding happiness among the producing mining companies.

Last week the price was quoted at 81 1/2 in San Francisco, but that does not establish an official record, as the figure was reached in filling out a small shipment for the Orient.

THE GIRL ON THE FARM.

Why Not Give Her Some Attention as Well as the Boy?

In recent years the problem of keeping the boy on the farm has been thought serious enough to arouse considerable discussion.

The farmer has been told that he ought to provide the most modern agricultural machinery in order to obviate the hard labor of farming and keep the boys interested; that he should send his boys to a good school of scientific agriculture; that he should set aside a certain portion of the farm for the boy and permit him to keep the profit from his operation, and he has been told many other things, in all of which the importance of the boy to the farm was emphasized and plans suggested to make his lot a little easier and more promising. The county agent has interested himself in the problem by organizing boys' corn growing and other agricultural contests.

But how about keeping the girl on the farm? The girl does not ordinarily do the heavy field work, but her services in homekeeping, cooking and mending as well as in buttermaking, milking, caring for garden and chickens, which tasks usually fall to her lot, are surely valuable enough to warrant the greatest consideration. And yet discussion of the problem of keeping the girl on the farm is infrequent.—Indianapolis News.

OTHER PEOPLE'S AFFAIRS.

Unless You Have Real Tact Don't Try to Be the Third Party.

Have you a reputation of being a third party where two persons are vainly trying to manage their own affairs? It is only the most tactful sort of persons who can successfully play the role of third party without doing more harm than good.

Don't try to fix things up between quarrelling lovers unless you are absolutely sure that you can trust your tact and intuition to do the right and only thing. Don't intervene in the affairs of a newly established household. Let the young people work things out for themselves. Don't try to bring up other people's children. They won't thank you. Nobody thanks the meddler, no matter how well intentioned she may be.

Now, to the humane soul who hates to see things go wrong when a word or two will apparently set them right, this withholding of interest seems most selfish. But it really isn't. It is the most considerate thing you can do sometimes to shut your eyes and let things take their natural course. They will right themselves in time, and you will not jeopardize your friendship by good natured meddling.

It is better to stand aside than to get mixed up as a third party in other people's troubles. Nobody loves a meddler.—Pittsburgh Press.

Russian Folk Songs.
Concerning the folk songs of Russia, Cesar Cui wrote in his "La Musique en Russie": "Russian folk songs are usually written within a very restricted compass and only rarely move beyond the interval of a fifth or a sixth. The older the song the narrower is the range of its compass. The theme always is short, sometimes extending no farther than two measures, but these two are repeated as often as the exigencies of the text demand. The folk songs are sung either by a single voice or by a chorus. In the latter case a single voice leads off with the subject, and then the chorus takes it up."

SCHEELITE COMMANDS PREMIUM IN MARKET

BUYERS PAY FROM $2 TO $3 A UNIT OVER PRICE OF WOLFRAMITE

As scheelite is found in large quantities in Nevada and as there are two scheelite concentrating plants in the state, the following from the Denver Mining and Financial Review will be of interest:

"Conditions in the tungsten market indicate that higher prices for the black metal may be anticipated at no distant date. Reports from Boulder county dealers in tungsten convey the news that certain producers have closed contracts to cover the rest of 1917. Scheelite is most in demand, buyers offering a premium of $2 to $3 per unit over the price of wolframite, the present market for which is around $21 and $22, with extensive inquiries giving promise of still higher bids.

"The strength of the tungsten situation is denoted by the fact that many buyers are in the market for contracts for 1918, but producers are unwilling to quote on so distant delivery, since they believe there will be no difficulty in disposing of their product at materially higher figures next year."

BOILED THEM TO DEATH.

How Poisoners Were Punished in the Good Old Days.

Our forefathers deemed hanging too good for people who went about deliberately poisoning other people. They substituted for that punishment boiling to death, the first to suffer this penalty being Richard Roscoe, cook to the bishop of Rochester in the reign of Henry VIII.

In medieval times in Europe poisoners when detected were usually broken alive upon the wheel after having first been given a taste of the rack while in prison awaiting execution as a sort of gentle reminder of what they had presently got to go through.

For wholesale poisoners, however, even this dreadful death was not deemed sufficiently painful, and new and special modes of punishment were invented. Thus Louise Mabre, a Parisian baby farmer, who in 1763 was proved to have done to death no fewer than sixty-two infants by administering to them carefully graduated doses of white arsenic mingled with powdered glass, was sentenced to be shut up in an iron cage with sixteen wild cats and suspended over a slow fire.

This was done, with the result that when the cats became infuriated with heat and pain they turned their rage upon her "and after thirty-five minutes of the most horrible sufferings put an end to her existence, the whole of the cats dying at the same time or within a few minutes after."—London Mail.

Animals Attack the Lungs. Watch any flesh eating animal when it is attacking its prey or watch two animals having a fight to the death. You will notice one remarkable fact, and that is that they strike for the lungs. Most people, of course, are well aware where their own lungs are, but they haven't the slightest idea about any other lungs. Animals, intuitively know, however, the position of the lungs of almost every other animal. When a tiger or a lion attacks a man it does its best to get just below the shoulder blades. If it strikes without warning you will always find that its powerful paws have torn right through to the lungs. A cat has just the same instinct. Watch it stalk a sparrow, and you will see how cleverly it maneuvers so as to get behind the unfortunate bird and pounce on its back, where the lungs are.—London Graphic.

Waiting For the Chance. Marks—My old aunt had not been dead twenty-four hours when her parrot died too. Parks—The poor bird died of grief, I suppose. Marks—No; poison.

AMUSEMENTS

The feature at the Butler today will be the long-heralded appearance of the popular young star, Norma Talmadge, in the first of her Selznick Pictures productions, a screen version of the noted drama, "Panthea," by Monckton Hoffe. Miss Talmadge recently severed connection with the Triangle company to appear at the head of her own producing organization under the Selznick banner. In "Panthea" Miss Talmadge plays the role made famous on the stage in this country by Mme. Olga Petrova. The theme of "Panthea" is one calculated to hold the interest of all picture patrons. The story begins in Russia with Panthea fleeing from the net of the secret police who have falsely accused her of being a revolutionist. Escaping to England, she marries a young composer and the greatest situation in the play comes when she sacrifices herself that he may achieve success. Striking scenes depicting the persecution of Nihilists by Russian police and destruction by fire of a vessel at sea, while outside of the main thread of the story, lend additional force to the production.
